The novel opens in the year 1558, as England is on the brink of civil war. The Protestant Reformation has divided the country, and religious tensions are running high. The three families at the heart of the story are the Fitzgeralds, the Tudors, and the Bourbons. The Fitzgeralds are a powerful Catholic family, while the Tudors are a Protestant family who have recently come to power. The Bourbons are a French Catholic family who are closely allied with the Fitzgeralds.

As the religious conflict intensifies, the three families find themselves on opposite sides of the divide. The Fitzgeralds and the Bourbons support the Catholic cause, while the Tudors support the Protestant cause. The novel follows the families as they navigate the treacherous political landscape, trying to protect their interests and their loved ones.
